left Bombay on 11th September, and Singapore on the 23rd September, with fine moderate Southerly winds till the 27th, when experienced strong Northerly wind and heavy sea till arrival.

The Siam bark Hap-seng reports left this port for Ningpo with general cargo on the 24th September, with light N.E. winds; on September 25th, at 6 a.m., passed Pedro Blanco, wind N.W., and increasing with heavy rain on 26th September made the Lammocks, bearing W., distance 5 miles; at 7 p.m. sudden shift to the N.W., and a gale suddenly came on the chip. and carried away the fore topsail, main topsail. fore topmast stayanil; barometer gave no warning at 7 p.m., but afterwards fell rapidly; at 10 p.m. blowing a hurricane, storm mizen staysail blew out of the bolt ropes, and ship near on her beam ends, and shifting the cargo, seas making a breach over all, sweeping the deaks of every thing: lay-to from 10 p.m. till 7 a.m. of the 27th, with tarpinling in the mizen rigging; at 8 a.m. of the 27th, the gale moderated, and bore up for Hongkong, and arrived here on 30th.

The British steamer Eastern Isles reports left Shanghai on the 24th September, with strong N.E. breeze; on the evening of the 25th tool shelter in Bullock Harbour, there being a terrific gale; 27th, weather moderating, proceeded bud fresh N.E. gale to Amoy, thence to Hong. hong moderate winds and clear weather: or the 28th, off Chin-chew, exchanged colours with the steamer Peike and the P. & O. steamer, both bound North; on 29th, off Lammock Islands passed a French mail steamer, bound North enme day, 70 miles East of Hongkong, spoke N. G. bark Baltic, steering for Hongkong, un , der courses, topmast and jibboom being carried

The North German barque Peiho, from New chwang on 7th September, reports left Newchwang 7th September, bound to Amoy, Swatow, and Hongkong; had Southerly winds till the 21st, the ship's position being of Shang. hai; then had N. and N.N.E. winds till 26th September, blowing a strong gale and a heavy sea, very thick and rainy; between lat. 26 and lat. 27 increasing till 27th Sept., when a complete hurricane blew, had to lay-to, and drifted | the office of this paper. Price $1.00. paul Amoy; towards night the gale moderated, bore up for Swatow, and arrived inside on the 29th; left again on Saturday morning, with an Basterly wind, which towards night wind veered to the Northward, and continued moderating till arrival yesterday in this port. On Saturday morning the Danish bank Crown Princess was going into Swatow dismasted.

ports left Newshwang 14th September, bound to Amoy; had Northerly winds for three days, as far as 33.40 N., after which had Southerly winds till lat. 31; from there got Northerly winds; passed Tung Ying on Sunday, 24th September, a stiff breeze, blowing at the time, and increasing to a gale; 3 a.m., next morning, bove-to under a close-rected mainsail, and a anuall sail in the mizen rigging, about 15 miles to leeward of the Ockseu Islands, there being s terrific typhoon blowing from the N.E. On Monday barometer began to rise, and wind slacked the next morning, the wind veered round to the N.W., and at noon commenced to freshen again, and by 4 o'clock the ship was laying over on her beam ends; had to cut away the fore topmast to save her from going over. bar. 1855; about 7 o'clock it suddenly moderated; and became a dead calm for half-an-hour; the wind then chopped round to E.N.E., and bar, commenced to rise fast; all Wednesday it was blowing a tremendous gale, squally, with thick rain, and on Thursday, the 28th, eighted the Lummock Islands, and here down for Hougkong. Arrived outside on Friday, and was towed in by the Fame.

Hongkong, October 2nd, 1871

The news which we published on Saturday by telegram from Shanghai with reference to the vexed question of the Transit rasses, will doubtless cause great satisfaction among the mercantile community. The one point upon which the whole of the Treaty stipulations depends has at last been admitted. The Pekin Government acknowledges that and rob the ship, or whether the whole thing according to the terms of the Treaty Transit Passes free foreign imports from further inland taxes, irrespective of lownership—that is to say, that when once the tariff duty and the transit duty have been paid, no further taxes are leviable, whether the goods are owned by Chinese or by foreigners.

Our readers will recollect that this ques them, it will become far too common in this tion arose in consequence of the Taoutai at harbour-i.e., always assuming that the mate's Shanghai having endeavouted to uphold the Imperial Maritime Customs in forcing the merchants who applied for transit passes declare that the goods were bona fide their out while upon this subject, and that is the property, and to specify the name of the very bad practice on board many ships in the Chinese Hong in the interior to which they barbour of keeping scarcely any night-watch. were consigned. This begged the whole This practice-was strongly remarked upon question at issue, and the Chamber of Commerce having brought the mutter to the of a less important nature on Wednesday cognisance of the Consuls, they induced last. It appeared that the deceased (who the Taoutai to give up the proposed new seems to have fallen overboard) was on duty system for issuing passes pending a reference nightly from 8 r.m. to 5.30 A.M., a length of of the matter to Pekin, and the decision now time during which very few men could be as telegraphed is the result of that reference. A It would be dangerous to enter into too in this harbour. On the Audaz, it appears elaborate a speculation on the bearing of that before the poisoning one of the officers the question on a short telegraphic sumused to take the night-watch, and the way in mary; but, if we are correct in assuming which he kept it was, deliberately-to plant that the Chinese Government have recoghis bed on the deck, to occupy it, and to co nised the force of the clauses in the treaty to sleep. There ought to be some Harbour to be to exempt all foreign goods throughregulation to enforce night-watches on board out Chiua from inland taxation on the every ship in harbour, and the Water Police payment of the tariff and transit-dues. should have regular patrol duty to keep the and to be willing to recognise this principle without qualification, one great step has been obtained. It is the latter point that is of the greatest importance. In the negotia. tions with Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOUR they admitted the principle, but pleaded difficulty in carrying it out, ultimately inducing him to give up the privilege in all but treaty port provinces, in consideration of their promising that it should be carried out in the latter. It will be very satisfactory to find, as we trust to be the case, that they have now expressed their willingness to recognise the principle in its integrity; but until details of the news arrive, it flooded. would be premature to be too sanguine. as it is not impossible that while recognising the principle they may, though perhaps in a less palpable form, repeat the manceuvre by which Sir Rutherford was so completely entrapped, of suggesting terms for carrying it out such as rendered it entirely abortive. We trust, however, sin-most complicated explanation, if we may use the expression. If it is true that, as the jury found, some one murdered the mate who died from the effects of the poisoned water, then carry it out were evidently carefully planned and executed with no little skill. Whoever he was who poisoned the water, he must have been well acquainted with the domestic cook, two days before the mate's death. it was at a quarter to 9 o'clock, not 8 o'clock. I found him without a lamp, and there was no by the Coroner and jury at another inquest constable to be discovered before getting to the Police Station, where I gave him in charge. Mr. Russell: What was your authority for arresting the man P

Mr. Dennys:-Addison on Torts. Here defendant rend section 809, and urgedethat according to it any one might arrest a suspicious character at night, and detain him till be showvigilant as they ought to be on board a ship ed himself a proper person. He added that defendant was actually committing an illegal act in disobeying the rule concerning lamps. A Police Inspector here rose and stated that defendant had insisted that the complainant should be put on the charge sheet.

Mr. Deane, who was on the Bench, observed that section 809 of Addison applied only to persons who were generally suspicious characters. His Worship said the case was so trivial that he did not think he need take the trouble to go into these fine points. The defendant having arrested the complainant was more an indiscretion than anything else; as the man suffered no wrong. Had he applied to him (Mr. Russell) he would not have allowed the summone to be granted.

Mr. Deane: But as the complainant has stated that it was by my orders that he took the case up, and the defendant confesses to having committed an indictable offence. I think a nominal punishment should be inflicted. His Worship: Well, then, I fine defendant one cent; at the came time, if Mr. Dennys thinks he has peculiar powers for detective work, the present state of the Colony will enable him to find sufficient occupation for his genius. The defendant then bowed and left the

Court, apparently without paying the heavy fine inflicted apon him. AN ANNUAL PASS MAN COME TO GRIEF. Edmund Molloy, P.C. 25, charged one Foonga-lum, a shopman, with being druck and knocking about the streets between the hours of S and 4 o'clock a.m., making a great noise; he had come into contact with him at 2 o'clock, and told him to be quiet, but all to no purpose. Mrs. Siddons' Fires Study of Lady Machath It was my custom to study my characters at night, when all the demestic cares and business of the day were over. On the night preceding that in which I was to appear in this part for the first time, I shut myself up as usual, when all the family were retired, and commenced my aludy of Lady Macbeth. As the character is very short, I thought I should soon accomplish Bring then only twenty years of age, I -believed, as many others do believe, that little more was necessary than to get the words into my head, for the necessity of discrimination, and the development of character, at that time of my life, had scarcely entered into my imagination. But to proceed. I went on with tolerable composure, in the silence of the night, (a night I never can forget,) till I came to the assassination scene, when the horrors of the scene rose to a degree that made it impossible for me to get farther. I snatched up my candle, and hurried out of the room in paroxysm of terror. My dress was of silk, and the rustling of it as I ascended the stairs to go to bed, seemed to my panic-struck fancy like the movement of a spectre pursuing me. last I reached my chamber, where I found my husband fast asleep. I clapt my candlestick down upon the table, without the power of putting the candle out, and I threw myself on my bad, without daring to stay even to take off my clothes. At peep of day I rose to resume my task: but so little did I know of my part when I appeared at night, that my shame and confusion cured me of procrastinating business for the remainder of my life."-The Kembles. By Porcy Fitzgerald.

Laudlocked Salmon. Among the objects of great interest to American sportsmen and those prosecuting inquiries in regard to the food fishes of the country are the so-called "landlocked salmon." Maine and elsewhere, and about which there has been much diversity of opinion. These are known especially as inhabiting Schago Lake and its streams, some tributaries of the Penobscot, the laken in the neighbourhood of Ellsworth, and the Schoodic lakes at the head of a branch of the St. Croix River. ... This fish has been actually described as a distinct species-from Sebugo Lake as Salmo sebago; and from near Ellsworth, Maine, as S. gloveri; the Schoodio fish being; we believe, without any specific appellation, unless it be S. hardinii, as named by Dr. Gunther. Whether this fish be really a "landlocked salmon"that is to say a true sea salmon that has changed its habits to such an extent as to dwell permanently in fresh waters—is the subject of inquiry on the part of Mr. Livingstone Stone, who is rather inclined to take ground in favour of a specific difference. He finds, as might be supposed that there is reason for referring the landlocked salmon, whether of three varieties or only of one, to the brook trout, the difference in the size of the scales. the dark apote instead of red, the shape of the head; and many other points, being each as to distinguish them. On the other hand, the close relationship to the sea calmon is shewn in the character of the scales and spots just referred to, in the development of a conical tusk in the lower jaw, in the similarity of the parrs to the sulmon parrs of same size, and the great size of the eggs, equal in this respect to those of the solmon; in the form of the yolk sac, which is clongated like that of the salmon, instead of being rounded like that of the trout; in their ascending streams at night; in the short period of spawning; and in spawning at night and lying quiet during the day, the reverse being the habit of the trout, which spawns during the day and liesquiet at night. The relation is, therefore, much moreolose to the true salmon; and the remaining question is as to whether it be really the same as the true sea salmon or not. Mr. Stone, eggs of the Sebago salmon, as he calls it, and of strange men to their masters houses was however, thinks the difference in the number of that of the sea salmon, is a very important point. Thus, while the latter produces from nine to of about one thousand to each pound in weight of | prisoner had entished complainent as to his infifteen thousand eggs per season, or an average one-third the weight, averages only six hundred discharged with a caution against accepting the fish, the landlocked salmon, although of about to the pound. Furthermore, there is not now, nor, has there ever been, anything to prevent these so called "landlocked salmon" from going to charged. the sea whenever they preferred; and the fact that they do not migrate is considered by Mr. Stone as strong proof that they never possessed the instinct to do so .- " Editor's Scientific Re-

are on his shoulder, was far upon his way. That night he would bring nothing home, but the interest had been paid for two or three months. Then, when we were quiet again, one fine morning Robin would come tapping at the window! People talk of diseases, which est one's heart out, and dry up one's blood, but the fatal malady of the poor is this borrowing at usurious interest. Their murderers are the naurers, the men who, with an appearance of coming to their assistance, live upon them so long as they are above ground. No words could tell you what my paronts suffered at the hands of this Robin. They had not a moment's rest, they could not sleep, they graw old with trouble, and the only consolution they had was in the thought that if one of their sons should draw a good number in the militia, they might sell him, and pay off the debt. We were six, four boys and two girls: Nicholas, Liabeth, myself, Olaude, Mathurine, and little Stephen, a deformed, pale, delicate little fellow, whom the people about Barnques called "the little dack," because he waddled about on his Société anonyme libre au Capital de 6,000,000 poor lame legs. All the others were strong and healthy. Our mother would look at us sometimes, and say: "Don't fret so much, Jean Pierre; out of the three one must surely win at | the drawing. Then, let Robin look out. As soon as he is paid, I will split his skull with a hatchet." Only great misery could give rise to such ideas. Our father made no answer, and as for us, it seemed a matter of course to us that we should be sold; we believed ourselves to belong to our father and mother, like a herd of cattle. Great poverty makes it impossible for one to see things as they really are; and before the revolution, all parents, except the nobles and the middle class, looked upon their children as their property. This is what people call so beautiful! This is what makes them say there was more respect for father and mothers in those days.
